Colorful Spring Concert By AHS Band, Orchestra and Chorus

Musicians present variod program in setting of beautifully painted decorations — Young people deserve much credit as does director and decorators—Amici Musicae, sponsors, realize large sum.

The Rambler

The annual spring concert and dance of the musical units of the Addison High School Friday night was one of the most colorful and entertaining in the series and provided entertainment for over 300 people. Incidentally Amici Musicae, sponsor of the concert, realized a large sum from the venture for more tickets were sold than at any previous concert. More than $100 was cleared on the event.

As one entered the large auditorium, one was attracted by the unique decorations on the stage. There were eight sections of board two feet high hiding the feet and lower parts of the chairs of the musicians. On the audience side of each board was painted two musical instruments in natural colors and over the whole was sprinkled star dust to make the whole front of the stage shimmer and shine. Some of the instruments looked so real, one felt they could be played. Tribute should be paid to Kenneth McCaig and Bernard Wilson of the faculty for the artistic efforts and effects. Hung on the backdrops of the stage were large musical signs and symbols in various colors.

And for the first time, all chairs were draped with the maroon of the school colors. These were made by the girls in the home economics department under the direction of Miss Phyllis Harley. These added much to the colorfulness of the stage and concert.

Orchestra

The first group of numbers on the program was given by the orchestra under the direction of Glenn L. Sprague, director. The numbers were so chosen by Mr. Sprague as to bring out the various instruments of the orchestra to their fullest and to show the development of the musicians in their respective roles. And to show what individual musicians are doing two solos were given, one a piano solo by Carlton Dartt and a violin solo by Hubert Dininny.

The first selection on the program was a full orchestra number, "Passacaglia and Fughetta" by Harold Johnson. "Red Rose" from the "Ballet of Flowers" by Henry Hadley was also a full orchestra number and the closing number was the "Talisman Overture" by Lester Brockton with a clever finale, leaving the audience wishing for more.

Chorus

Musicians then left the stage to make way for the mixed chorus. It was noticed there are more boys in the chorus this year than last and it is to be hoped the number will grow to balance the sopranos of the many girls. The girls wore summer attire with white skirts and colored blouses.

There was balance in this program from the lilting and rapid "Jingle, Jingle Jack" to the more somber tones of "God of Our Fathers". J. S. Bach provided the inspiration for the next number in "Grant Us to do With Zeal", and the group presentation of "Good-night, Good-night Beloved" gave the boys an opportunity to do solo parts. The group closed with the familiar Finnish folk song, "Whisper, Whisper".

Grace Jackson gave a piano solo "Notturno" from Edvard Greig. This was typically a twilight reverie number and well played.

Band

This group in turn gave way to the band and the tapping of feet throughout the hall and swaying of heads told of the number who were pleased by the rollicking sway of the band. The group numbers played were "Colorado" concert march by Holmes, "Traveler Overture" by Buchtel, "Star Dust" by Carmicheal-Yoder, Robin Hood Fantasie" in a lighter vein by Lester Brockton with emphasis on the woodwinds, and closing with "Our Director March". Three solos featured this part of the program. France Colburn gave a trombone solo, "Atlantic Zephyrs" by Simons. "Storm King" a bombastic sousaphone solo given by Matthew Whitmore and the waltz "My Regards" given as a cornet solo by Richard Gladstone. This showed excellent control and fingering.

The audience was responsive and gave the musicians a great deal of applause. The young people and their director deserve a great deal of praise for their efforts. And the community joins in wishing them success in their trials at the sectional music contest in Painted Post Friday and Saturday.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

German invasion of Denmark and Norway Tuesday marked the unexpected angle of the long awaited Nazi spring drive. Denmark submitted to Nazis aggression without a fight, but the Norwegians resisted landing of men from the German fleet at Oslo and Narvik. As the British learned of this new Hitler move the royal fleet swung into action and a sea battle has been raging for two days. Censorship of news and contradicting stories make the outcome uncertain but both sides have sustained heavy naval losses.

One Nazi battle cruiser was reported sunk by coast batteries firing from Oslo, according to Swedish reports. The heavily armed ship is said to have gone down in Oslo Fjord.

Sweden is still attempting to maintain a status of neutrality in the big war which has swept her nearest neighbors into the conflict Some scattering companies of Danish soldiers fled across the border into Sweden as the Nazis occupied Denmark.

Great Britain declared her intention of defending Norway whether or not the Norwegians surrendered to the Germans in this up side down war. A British submarine torpedoed a large Nazi transport reported to have been the Bremen pride of the German merchant fleet.

The King of Norway fled from the capital at Oslo as the Nazis landed there. Hitler's broadcast-waves claim the Norwegians are

THE ECONOMY LEGISLATURE

Assemblyman Stuart of this county served well his own constituents and other taxpayers of the state when he lashed out in the final, droning hours of the legislature at a bill designed as a slick "sleeper". The Assembly, dog-tired from nearly 14 hours of considering measure after measure in the last-minute legislative jam was all but asleep when the Dunnigan bill came from the Senate. This bill provided for increasing the pay of the State Comptroller and Attorney General from $12,000 to $20,000 a year, each. Stuart jumped up when the bill was read some 30 minutes before time for adjournment, denouncing it in strong language

He said, "I could not believe it possible anyone would have the nerve, the unmitigated gall to submit to this House such a proposal".

"Gall" it was, indeed. And gall it might be called that a number of Republican assemblymen voted even then with the solid Democratic minority for passage of this pay-boosting measure. Gall it was that enabled the bill to pass the Senate which is Republican by a small majority. Especially gall for Republicans in either House who voted for the Dunnigan bill when they have called themselves the "Economy Legislature".

"Economy Legislature" they may be in their own minds, but to the citizen who looks beneath the surface there was less of economy at Albany last winter than of dust-raising and side-stepping the real issue of unjustified spree spending. Three or four paltry millions were lopped off where it would cause as little cry as possible from the pressure spending groups, but as for honest, straightforward economy there was precious little shown. No attempt was made to dig into the bureaucratic state departments which have been eating up tax funds like sea lions devouring fish.

As for the matter of state aid for education, it is in exactly the same garbled condition in which it was left a couple of years ago when the report was made of the "Cost and Character of Education" by the Young commission. This report stated there were millions wasted in the Education Department, yet nothing is done about it. The Legislature fears the question of wholesale centralization of schools may be too hot a potato to handle and so no move is made to consolidate schools which are wasting funds through small pupil attendance.

It is high time for taxpayers to review the work of their own legislators to see whether they did a service or disservice with the office this session. Titles do not make realities, and the name "Economy Legislature" is not reflected by the actual accomplishments of those who sat in Albany last winter. Indeed, if it had not been for a few watchful representatives like Assemblyman Stuart the name "Economy" might have meant even raising the profligate budget the Governor induced certain Republican leaders to think was all right last January.

It would be an excellent thing to have published in each district the bills each assemlyman and senator for the district introduced in the previous session. Review of these measures should give the taxpayers a pretty fair idea of what kind of representation they had.

CHEAP MONEY COSTLY

"In the long run", said a small town banker recently, "it will be the Government that will suffer most from its cheap money policy, for it is rapidly succeeding in killing off thrift, the real backbone of its security".

Nothing can do more than excessively cheap money to destroy the incentive to save and invest in productive undertakings. And nothing can work a heavier burden on those millions of people who depend for all or part of their livelihood on a little accumulated capital invested in securities and mortgages. The "big fellow" is hit least by cheap money—if you have enough capital, even an extremely low interest return will bring you an adequate income. It is the "little fellow" with a few thousand dollars of savings, who bears the brunt of it.

From the point of view of our national economy, cheap money seems to have proven itself an almost unmitigated evil. It has forced banks to pare interest on deposits to the point of non-existence—the banks can't pay a rate of interest they are unable to earn. And it has driven an abnormal amount of money out of industry and into non-productive channels, such as government bonds. Why should a man take a chance on a venture in which he may lose when his possible return is extremely limited? And the result is that more and more new industries go begging for the capital which would produce jobs, opportunities and new wealth for the people.

No nation can remain great when an incentive to save and be thrifty is destroyed. No nation can maintain its place in the sun when government policies virtually force money out of productive uses. No nation can go ahead when the little capital saved over arduous years through a working man's labor and sacrifice, produces a diminishing return. Any number of modern governmental laws and policies have been aimed straight at the thrifty person, the millions of ordinary Americans who would normally be saving and investing, and abnormally cheap money has been among the most damaging.

THE SPRING CONCERT

The many folks in this community who attended the Addison High School Spring Festival last Friday went away uttering many expressions of praise for the excellent entertainment. In fact words of praise were unneeded to show the appreciation of the audience for every number received such spontaneous, sustained applause the verdict of the crowd was given long before the last notes died away in the concluding band number.

Addison has had reason to be proud of the high school music department over the course of a number of years, and never more so than today. Starting with the coming here of F. Arden Burt nearly ten years ago, Addison has been definitely music minded. Mr. Burt was succeeded by another excellent director when his place was taken by Joseph Greyback and when Mr. Greyback left the department continued to grow in popularity and accomplishment under the little giant of the baton, Joe Sprague. When one music director praises another, it is praised indeed, and that is what happened last week.

For there was no more attentive member of the audience than Mr. Greyback who came over from Dundee with his wife to hear the concert. After it was over the former school maestro remarked to an acquaintance, "Joe is certainly doing a swell job with that bunch of boys and girls!" Others echoed these words in a variety of ways.

Growth has been apparent in music of the school from year to year in the successful competition of the A. H. S. band in spring contests and music festivals. Yet the lasting benefits are not to be measured by winning places at contests, but rather by the effect upon the lives of students who go in for music. It requires rigorous self-discipline to practice on an instrument day after day and month after month, yet without practice no one can ever play in a band or orchestra. Forming the habit of sticking to an undertaking is an indirect benefit, but it is real and lasting. Also real and lasting for a lifetime is the knowledge and appreciation of music.

Students of Addison High School who take advantage of what the music department offers them serve doubly. They serve themselves and they serve the public who reap pleasure from events like the Spring Concert of last week.

HELPING KING COTTON

What is probably the most aggressive campaign on behalf of beleaguered King Cotton ever inaugurated, was recently announced by Donald M. Nelson, President of the Institute of Distribution, Inc.

A short time ago a Cotton Consumption Council met in New Orleans to consider ways and means of stimulating cotton sales in this country. At the meeting were representatives of growers, manufacturers, retail distributors, and government officials. Out of that meeting came a 15-point cotton promotional program that will see cotton continuously pushed on a nation-wide basis in 1940. High spot of the drive will be National Cotton Week, to be observed from May 17 through May 25.

Spearhead of the campaign will be America's organized retail distributors, including both the chains and the individual retailers. Every section of this country, from metropolis to cross-roads towns, will be included in the cotton drive.

Some 12,000,000 Americans depend on King Cotton for their livelihood—for the money that buys food and clothes and homes and fuel and amusements and everything else. To quote Mr. Nelson, "When cotton wagons roll and cotton gins hum, times in the United States are good". The cotton surplus has long been a problem in this country. The key to improvement is stimulated consumption at home.

More power to King Cotton—and the cotton sales campaign. Its success means much to every industry, every locality, every worker in this vast country of ours.

LIKE A HOBBLED TEAM

A committee of the Department of Labor has been conducting hearings to determine its recommendation as to future minimum wages in the railroad industry. It has been proposed that the railroads' minimum wage level be advanced to 40 cents an hour.

Testifying before the committee, the attorney for the Class One railroads of the country as a whole, said flatly that any increase in the present 30-cent minimum will mean a substantial loss of railroad jobs through further mechanization of the industry.

Furthermore, the increase would affect a relatively small number of workers. The rails now have some 1,138,000 employes, of whom only 84,000 receive less than 40 cents an hour, most of them being laborers. Even so, the attorney said, "The cost to the Class One railroads of increasing the present minimum wage to 31 cents would cost approximately $750,000, while the cost of increasing it to 40c would be more than $14,250,000 a year. The railroad industry has been and is in a critical condition."

THE MOTH AND THE FLAME

Dear Rambler:

There are many reasons why multitudes will not forget the "Big Snow" of Valentine's Day, 1940, in Steuben County. Here are some incidents from our own section:

—o—

On one of our many hill country farms a father of seven children awoke on the day following the storm to find that he and his family were completely isolated. Some of his children were ill with measles. Another child was expected any day. His road and driveway were so buried in snow that it would be impossible for him to get out, or a physician to get in. During the ten days that he was so isolated he could look across the snow-covered fields into the next town and see the snow plow clear the roads and driveways of his two nearest neighbors. He will not soon forget those ten days of isolation and anxiety caused by "The Big Snow".

Another hill farmer had his surplus hay stored in a barn on another farm. For ten days the road to his home was so full of snow that a team could not go through it. His hay gave out, and for two weeks he was forced to feed straw to his stock. As a result he has four ewes that he does not expect to go through lambing time. He has been almost isolated for thirty days—his plea for help going unheeded. Like many others, the road to his mail box is still snow blocked and impassable.

—o—

Death knocked at the door of a rural home. No undertaker could go through the shifting white mass to minister to the needs of the stricken family. The snow plow came to the rescue and carried the body out of isolation to the mortuary in a nearby village.

—o—

One home was so isolated by snow, illness and infirmity that food supplies were exhausted and no one from that home could get out to procure the needed supplies. Neighbors took pity upon the stricken home and traveled over the snow-covered fields with great difficulty to carry food into that home that life might not go out.

—o—

These are just a few incidents from varying towns of our county. Doubtless many more might be discovered if the news were to be given out. But many of the dirt roads on which some of our good families live were snow-filled for weeks at a time and are still impassable. That snow which covered the sordid ugliness of a wintry landscape may lose its beauty in the certain grief and imprisonment which it sometimes produces.

The Rambler was made somewhat envious during the past week. The cause—a card from the sunny southland from our friend Frank Ginnane. He is in Miami and sends a card with a bevy of beautiful southern belles in bathing suits on the picture side and on the reverse tells about how nice it is there, "compared to the snowball country." And I'm sniffing from cold and damp weather. Oh me!

Saw a man get out of one side of a truck, his wife out of the other. She went in a grocery store and he walked across the street, looked around several times and then darted into one of the drinkeries. I wonder if he is afraid of his wife?

A woman came into the Advertiser office last week and asked if she could borrow a paper to take home to read and then return. And I know she can afford to buy one many times over too. That is a literal interpretation of "freedom of the press'.

A reader sent this clipping from another paper and applied the term to Addison.

"A hick town is a place where outsiders can't find parking space because the people who work on Main street are using it all.

I like ham. Welles Hose Company members can prove it, for they invited the Missus and I to a dinner Monday night, and they sat there and watched me stow away ham by the pound. Walt Aldrich, Lew Handy and some of the others ate so much they had to take naps after, but I can hold my ham with the best of them and keep going.

Tonight, Thursday, John Davis and his team, losers in the recent membership drive of the Ad Club, will provide the meal for the winning team of Charles Salerno. The deal for the supper states nothing less than pancakes and members are wondering what the supper will be . Some are taking bicarbonate of soda with them, believing in the Boy Scout motto, "Be Prepared".

—o—

That's all.

Fruit, Flowers, Garden

Better Flowers With Less Work
Kenneth Wheeler

Although most gardeners know how a winter mulch protects the flower garden, few persons use a light summer mulch to save moisture, keep out the sun, cut down disease, and decrease weeds and the need for cultivation.

By keeping down weeds, competition with the flowering plants is lessened, and maintenance of the garden becomes less work. Diseases such as the black spot of roses are reduced because the infectious spores are smothered by the mulch. Where water is a problem in summer, good mulching is desirable and helpful.

Peat moss is effective and handy and should be applied in a two-inch layer between plants in early spring. Do this as soon as the flowers are tall enough to escape burying in the mulch.

If a summer mulch is not used, take care to remove weeds before they mature seed. Weeding should be done regularly until frost comes in the fall, for some weeds, such as chickweed, start growth in the spring at the point where they left off in the fall.

Don't put weeds on the compost heap; burn them or take them to the dump. Otherwise, seeds from mature weeds may be distributed over the garden and cause unnecessary trouble. Seeds can withstand several years of compositing, and weeds don't make a good composit material anyway.

ASK The Scientist

Do you have a question to ask the scientist? If so, mail it to the New York Press Association, The Castle, Syracuse, N. Y. The Science Board of the Radio Workshop at Syracuse University will answer here each week those questions considered most interesting and timely.

QUESTION. Of what benefit is the old-fashioned spring tonic of sulphur and molasses?

ANSWER. The benefit is probably more psychological than physiological. Molasses is rich in iron but we have many other normal foods that have a much higher content of iron than molasses. The same thing can be said concerning the sulphur. Eggs, for example, are richer in both iron and sulphur and probably have a much higher content than the molasses and sulphur mixture.—Dr. Verlus Lindman, physiologist.

QUESTION. What causes the top leaves of a house fern to turn brown when the rest of the leaves seem to be in a perfectly healthy condition?

ANSWER. The fronds of a healthy fern are constantly unfolding. Therefore, new fronds are always coming on and some of the old ones are dying off The brown ones are the old fronds and should be cut off. The fact that the top leaves turn brown does not indicate that anything is the matter with the fern. — Dr. Ernest Reed, geneticist.

QUESTION. Are calcium and phosphorous minerals which are not stored in the body and must be supplied each day?

ANSWER. Calcium and phosphorous are stored in the body. If they weren't, we wouldn't have any bones in the body. The amount of calcium and phosphorous eliminated each day has a fairly definite limited volume. Hence, we must take into the body in our food a relatively definite amount of these substances each day. At least as much should be taken in the body as is eliminated each day.

Meats, vegetables, fruits, nuts, milk and many other foods contain phosphorous and calcium compounds. If a person is eating a well balanced diet, it is highly probable that he is getting enough calcium and phosphorous.—Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

QUESTION. Does butter lose any of its qualities if not kept on ice?

ANSWER. Butter keeps best in the cold in the absence of both light and air. Vitamin A which is in butter is much more stable than the vitamin C found in orange juice which is lost to some extent even if kept in the icebox overnight. The rate at which butterfat decomposes into butyric acid, which gives it that very rancid odor, and other products is retarded if butter is kept cold.—Dr. Elder.

QUESTION. What factors in the structure of a house might cause one to get an unusual number of strong electrical shocks, particularly when one touched metal?

Answer: As one crosses a room, the rubbing of his shoes on the carpet causes his body to become electrically charged. When one comes near metal the electrical charge sparks off to the metal.

The amount of moisture in the room affects the phenomenon. If the air in the room is dry, the charge stays on the body for a relatively long time and will probable be present when one nears metal. If the air is moist, the charge leaks off the body just about as fast as it is put on.

One never experiences these shocks in summer as one does in winter due to the greater moisture in the air during the warmer season. Wool rugs will give a larger charge than will cotton rugs.—Dr. W. R. Fredrickson, physicist.

....QUESTION 6. Is chlorine water harmful to the skin?

ANSWER. Chlorine is harmful in high concentrations but it is not harmful in the strength in which it is commonly used in sterilizing drinking water and in purifying swimming pools. The use made of chlorine during the world war is ample evidence that in high concentrations it is a deadly poison.

When chlorine is properly used the concentration is too low to cause any difficulty. When chlorine is noticeable in the water in a swimming pool, the condition is traceable usually to faulty operation of the chlorinator.—Dr. Elder.

Question. What effect does cigarette smoking have on blood pressure?

ANSWER. Smoking generally brings about a temporary increase in blood pressure. However, a number of studies have been made on large groups of men which indicate that the average blood pressure of non-smokers is about the same as that of heavy smokers. The effect will be the same whether one smokes cigars, pipe or cigarettes.—Dr. Lindeman.

QUESTION. Does it do any harm to connect two or more radios on the same antenna and ground wires?

ANSWER. No. Modern radios are such that one can connect more than one radio to an aerial. Many hotels, for example, have but one aerial although they have a radio in every room. Dr. Fredrickson.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
W. STERLING COLE

The U. S. Government Baby Bonds originally brought out to attract small investors have been bought by corporations, banks and trust companies in large numbers. The bonds carry an annual rate of 2. 9 percent, which is about one percent higher than other government securities now on the market. In an effort to cut down the one billion dollar annual interest charge on public debt these baby bonds will not be sold except to individuals after April 1st.

Eliminating savings so far brought about by the House in making appropriations below budget estimates the Senate has passed a $923,000,000 farm bill which exceeds budget estimates by $202,000,000. Ear-marked in the appropriation are the following items: $212,000,000 for parity payments, $5,000,000 for surplus food disposal and $90,000,000 for RFC loans for rural electrification and farm tenancy. The Treasury says that the size of the present national debt, which very nearly approximates the debt limit of 45 billion set by law, will make new taxes mandatory if the farm bill is enacted into law in the form passed by the Senate. Taxes will have to be increased or the debt limit raised, both politically highly distasteful to the Congress, especially in a Presidential election year.

The fine program of economy followed by the House this year was upset last week when it voted to exceed the budget estimates and requests for the Civilian Conservation Corps for $50,000,000 making the CCC appropriation for next year $280,000,000. Funds for the National Youth Administration were hiked from $85,000,000 to $102,450,000 an increase of $17,450,000. The National Relations Board was cut $337,000—more because of hostility to the Board than from any sense of real economy. To many who had genuine hopes that this Congress would poist the way toward lower public expenditures, the recent action of both the House and the Senate has been a real disappointment.

Buried out in the hills of Kentucky, the United States has interred two-thirds of the world's supply of gold, 16 billion dollars worth. Uncle Sam has been borrowing billions and then buying gold with this borrowed money, paying a bonus of $15.00 for an ounce over world market values. This vast supply of gold is sterilized and Uncle Sam is in a predicament. He cannot quit buying gold or the bottom will fall out and prices will greatly depreciate. If he keeps on buying, he will soon be broke. Nowadays with high taxes and low prices we say that the farmer with fairly large holdings is land poor. The same can be said for Uncle Sam except that he is gold poor. He has gone in debt to buy gold at an inflated price an now has no use for the metal.

The Library of Congress receives the regular issue of 900 newspapers and preserves 330 of them. Most of these are dailies, but twelve weeklies are also preserved. Among the weeklies are a financial weekly one from Hawaii, two from the Philippine Islands, two from Alaska three Negro publications, two veterans' periodicals and a German-American newspaper. Because some of these newspapers which are bound ond filed away become old and deteriorate and take up so much space, the officials of the Library are asking Congress to appropriate money for miero-film. It is planned to photograph these old papers and then destroy them, saving $185,000 in storage costs. From thirty thousand to ninety thousand volumes of newspapers will be micro-filmed.

The prize job for male stenographers here is that of the men who take down debates in the House and Senate. They get $7,500 a year; work in fifteen minute shifts; dictate their notes into a machine and have an expert transcriber. They do not work when Congress is not in session. The stenographers who take the testimony in committees get around $6,000 a year.

Corn filling for steaks is a new idea. Select two steaks (pork, lamb, veal or beef) about half an inch thick. Fit one into a buttered casserole, cover it with a two-inch layer of corn filling (two cups of corn, seasoned with parsley, salt, pepper, minced onion and butter). Put the other steak over the corn and sprinkle it with seasonings and melted fat. Cover and bake in a moderate oven. Uncover and bake 30 minutes more to brown.

If you have a favorite recipe — please send it along. Contributions to this department will be welcomed.

Muffin Magic

Probably the only magic there is to muffin making is following directions carefully. Here are basic directions suggested by the New York state college of home economics that can be used for mixing and baking most kinds of muffins:

1. Have all of the ingredients at room temperature.

2. Sift the flour before measuring. Graham flour or cornmeal should be sifted before measuring, and the coarse particles that do not pass through the sifter should be put back into the sifted dry ingredients.

3. Measure and sift all of the dry ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Thorough mixing at this point is necessary because the batter itself is to be stirred only slightly. Insufficient mixing of the dry ingredients may cause brown spots in the muffins owning to the unmixed soda. If the recipe calls for cheese or fruit, it should be mixed with the dry ingredients.

4. Beat the whole egg slightly and combine it with the milk and the liquid fat.

5. Pour the liquid ingredients into the dry mixture and stir until the flour is just dampened. The mixture will not be smooth. When coarse flour or meal is used, stir the mixture for about 10 seconds after the ingredients have been dampened.

6. Fill the greased muffin tins at once about two-thirds full. Place them in the oven within 15 minutes.

7. Bake in a moderate hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes.

Hydrants in Village To Be Flushed Next Week

The annual spring flushing of the water hydrants of the village by the Steuben Water Works will begin next Wednesday, April 17 at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and continue for three days.

The first hydrants to be flushed will be on the north side of the town on Wednesday, between the river and the creek on Thursday and south of the creek on Friday.

The object is to clear the lines of the winter accumulation of material in the water mains and to assure the company that all hydrants are clear and free-flowing.

The large flow of water used in flushing hydrants stirs up material in the lines so that water runs murky for about two hours after the flushing. With this in mind officials of the company ask the patrons to draw a sufficient supply of water to fill their needs until water in the lines clears. Patrons are asked to remember the days for flushing so they will not be inconvenienced by dirty water.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Behind the scenes in Washington these three men are working quietly but effectively to settle the age old question as to who shall control the U. S. Navy. The conflict, which has raged with special vigor under the President's rearmament proposals, is due to the fact the high naval officers believe that their decision should be final in all matters affecting the nation's sea power while the non-naval engineers and executives declare they are better qualified from the standpoint of technical education to pass on construction and other problems. The dispute for control finally landed in the lap of the House Naval Affairs Committee and W. Sterling Cole was one of the five members specially chosen to hold exhaustive hearings and settle the controversy for all time. The decision, once made, will have far-reaching consequences. In the picture, from the left, are Mr. Cole, Charles Edison, secretary of the Navy, and M. J. Maas, ranking member of Naval Affairs Committee.

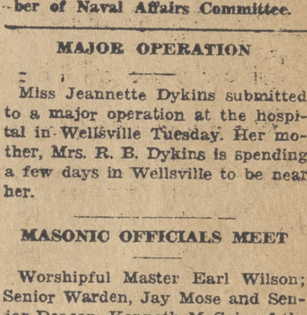
"Road to Singapore" Starts Saturday at Fox

One of the liveliest melanges of joy and hilarity ever to come out of Hollywood arrives in town Saturday at the Fox Theatre, with a cast headed by Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope, who are ably abetted at their gay high jinx in the tropics by such players as Charles Coburn, Judith Barrett, Anthony Quinn and the renowned Professor, Jerry Colonna, Bob's radio sidekick. The title—"Road to Singapore" hits the keynote of revelry and riot which predominates throughout the film.



BING CROSBY
DOROTHY LAMOUR

The story serves as a warp on which is woven a series of hilarious incidents such as Bing's and Bob's trick of playing "Pattycake" then socking ofefnsive parties, Jerry Colonna's singing session at the organ, and the time the boys go blackface so that they can get something to eat at a native party. All this naturally involved plenty of singing of five new tunes and elegant dancing by about two hundred tropical maids. At least, it was two hundred when we lost count.

After disposing of two gorillas hired by one of Hope's old girl friends at "Patty-Cake", and after eluding Bing's father—Charles Coburn—and his fiancee—Judith Barrett, the boys turn up in Kaigoon, a South Seas hamlet.

There they lead an idyllic existence until Dorothy Lamour comes along. Things get even more idyllic when she decides to keep house for the boys and both of them fall in love with her.

Meanwhile however, Professor Colonna, representing the rival steamship line to that owned by Bing's father, spots the lads, and lets the old man know where he is. When the irate Papa and Miss Barrett get there, things become complicated romantically and it takes a lot of funny things to straighten out matters.

GROWING PAINS

J. Edgar Hoover, under the title "Criminals are home grown", in a special article for THE ROTARIAN says "the crime problem for the most part is a youth problem."

Not every youth who gets into difficulties during his 'teen years, comes under the classification of a criminal; but, between the two—the lad who qualifies as a criminal in the eyes of the law and the other boys who do not, but often come near reaching that degree, in the social problem is represented a vast number of capable youngsters who but for the lack of proper guidance might have become fine American citizens.

Can we afford to pass up any possible assistance that will offer hope of salvaging a good citizen?

Many villages in the Steuben Area have this month begun to organize a campaign to the end that no boy in the community shall miss the opportunity to have citizenship training under trained Boy Scout leadership. Twelve of the villages are already organized and ready to start April 22, others are in process of organization and all expect to be fully prepared on the opening date to call on every progressive citizen and give each the opportunity to contribute their proper share toward promoting the Boy Scout movement.

Largest boy membership in the history of the Steuben Area is now enrolled and without raising the quota of any community the Council will endeavor to finance this huge 1940 program. Each community is going to look back with pride on the coming campaign if on April 27 they are able to say—

"We didn't fail our boys at the most critical period of their lives".

"We met our Area quota in full".

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Destroy Wasps

Mrs. E. D., asks: "Can you advise me how to get rid of wasps in the house? They bother both in summer and winter?"

Dr. R. W. Leibey of the entomology department answers: We have sent you informatieon on how to control wasps. A thorough spraying with a strong pyrethrum spray, applied so that the spray will hit the bodies of the wasps, is likely to stupify the insects. Then they can be readily swept up and destroyed."

Is Fruit Injurious?

R. S., writes: "A few years ago I planted a dozen peach trees around my summer bungalow. Three of these were planted along the septic tank outlet which is used to dispose of waste since there is no public sewer system available. These trees have far outstripped the others in every way. Could the fruit eaten from these trees possibly be injurious to health?"

Professor Damon Boynton of the pomology department replies: "The reasons why the trees have done so well along this outlet are probably the excellent continuous water supply and also the supply of nutrients. I have a lawn which is sub-irrigated in that way, and it is far superior to any of my other lawns.

Advertiser Donates Fourth of Space to Your Organizations

Survey of year shows churches and sub-divisions receive greatest publicity with school second—Farm news places third — Advertising and circulation revenue from Addison does not support paper.

The need for the Addison Advertiser in this community can best be emphasized by showing what the paper contributes to the community during the course of one year. Contributes without expectation of any return.

The newspaper is a community billboard or town crier and fortells the events of the community, records a weekly history of events of the community and reviews the events that are past for the record of those that are inclined to want to know what happened.

This is true of any community newspaper.

However, desiring to know just what part the Advertiser plays in the community life, a member of the staff made a survey of every issue in the year 1938 to find out how much space was contributed to various activities, organizations and business. The figures were revealing.

The survey showed that the churches of Addison, including their various sub-organizations, received 2,334 inches of space during 1938. This was the largest amount of free space accorded any group.

School and school organizations were second with 2,222 inches of free publicity on all sorts of activities, not including athletics which are listed under a separate heading.

The Advertiser printed a total of 1,809 inches of farm news and views during the year 1938 and devoted 1,422 inches to civic organizations such as Advertising Club, Boy and Girl Scouts and Civic Club.

To better appreciate the figures being given there are 20 inches to a column and from this it can be figured how many column inches were devoted to the various phases of life in this community.

Town and village affairs received 953 inches, writeups for business concerns 745 inches, other organizations 864 inches, sports 1,493 inches or a total number of free space inches amounting to 12,043 inches out of a total of 46,560 inches printed or about one-fourth of the average paper donated free for the promotion of activities in this community.

The above figures do not include any of the correspondence or of affairs in the communities represented in the Advertiser parish. Nor do these figures include any special columns or pictures nor personals but material appearing only in the regular news columns.

A breakdown of this free publicity given Addison affairs is given in the accompaying table. And some time we will give you an analysis of the amount of the payroll and overhead as compared with the advertising revenue and circulation revenue received from Addison to show that the paper's revenue is not derived locally and that if dependence was on the Addison merchants to support the paper, the paper could not survive. This is not an indictment of Addison merchants but a statement of fact based on financial statements.

Potato Growers Buy Certified Seed

For the second year Steuben County potato growers will buy certified seed potatoes through a county-wide pool, to improve the quality of the crop and thus to increase their profits.

That seed potatoes bred for freedom of disease and high yield are a good investment is indicated by the statement of Professor E. V. Hardenburg, Cornell potato expert, who reports that in tests conducted in 13 New York State counties, certified seed gave an average yield of 254 bushels, as compared to a yield of 176 bushels from so called common seed. In the case of these tests, conducted over a ten-year period, certified seed gave a yield increase of 45 per cent.

Yet another way to look at this matter, Professor Hardenburg points out, is to cite the fact that those areas that are making progress in potato production use certified seed. A survey in 1932 showed that 96 per cent of the seed planted on Long Island was certified as compared to only 20 per cent in western New York.

New Jersey, another area where the potato industry is on the gain, is estimated to use 90 per cent certified seed.

Steuben county growers who planted certified seed last spring report a substantial increase in yeld over common seed, and a crop that sold for more money. And in many instances these growers received a premium of fifteen to twenty cents throughout the marketing season, because of the superior quality of their crop.

Orders for the seed are to be placed with the local potato shippers not later than April 15.

Maple Sap Run Off to Latest Start in Years

Albany, March 27. — Spring and New York State's maple season arrived together.

From Liberty, Sullivan County, came a report to the department of Agriculture and Markets that the first maple trees were tapped a few days ago. Almost at the same time a report arrived from Norwich that Chenango County's season is underway, and by now it is probable that sugaring operations are in progress throughout most of the state.

In accordance with the annual custom, the Department asked Farm Bureau agents in the maple producing counties, to report the first run of sap. Paul H. Allen, Sullivan County Farm Bureau agent, was the first to report. Mr. Allen expects that "other sugar bushes in Sullivan County will be tapped rapidly from now on.

Hampered by continued cold weather, the 1940 maple season in New York State got off to one of the latest starts in the last ten years, the Department said. Sunny, thawing days and freezing nights are the proper combination for a good flow of maple sap, but farmers this year are encountering deep snow in their sugar bushes—a factor which makes it difficult to tap the trees near the ground.

New York State is the second largest maple producing state in the county, ordinarily running a close second to Vermont in quantity of maple syrup and maple sugar. Much of the maple syrup produced in New York this year will be graded for purity and color, and considerable quantities will be marketed under the Empire State trademark as provided by law.

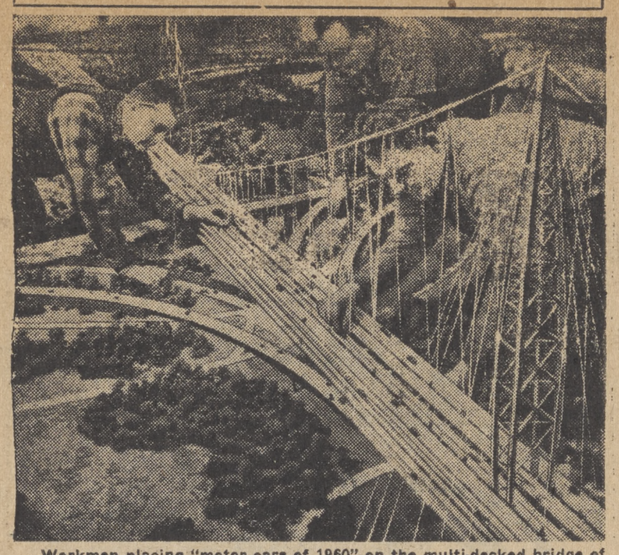
1960 Autos Set for 1940 Fair



Workmen placing "motor cars of 1960" on the multi-decked bridge of GM's Futurama at the World's Fair in New York. More than 16,000 of these tiny cars will be in actual operation over the express motorways of the Futurama.

VISITORS to the World's Fair of 1940 in New York, which opens on May 11, will find the now famous Futurama, hit of last year's Fair, "a more dazzling and breath-taking world of 1960 than ever," according to William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, in revealing details of GM's participation in the 1940 Fair.

Throughout the winter months, Mr. Knudsen said, workmen, artists, designers and craftsmen from many fields, have worked on the Futurama changing and improving it in many many ways. The Futurama is the highlight of the Corporation's Highways and Horizons exhibit, which during the 1939 Fair was visited by 13,000,000 persons. Covering an area of 35,000 square feet and extending for a third of a mile, visitors "tour" the Aladdin-like, miniature world of the future in moving sound-chairs.

An outstanding new feature of the Futurama will be the 16,000 tiny automobiles of imaginative 1960 design, which will be in actual operation over the express motorways. The Futurama contains 500,000 houses and buildings and over 1,000,000 trees. Many new churches of varying design dot the landscape of city and countryside.

In the Futurama industrial town workmen have fitted and have in operation, 500 tiny, "grain-of-wheat" size lamps which combine into a street lighting system.

In addition to the many improvements and changes of the Futurama, the 1940 visitor to the Fair will find that the entire exhibit building has been air-conditioned and that new lounges and restrooms have been installed. There will be an attractive lounge for GM employes who visit the Fair from many sections of the country.

The science and research stage show, Previews of Progress, which last year ran a close second in popularity to the Futurama, will again be presented in the GM Auditorium.

One of Six at Model League

Miss Eleanor Hogue has resumed her studies in the senior class at Nazareth College, Rochester, following the Spring recess. Miss Hogue was in Geneva, March 28-30, as one of the six Nazareth College delegates representing Spain, at the Model League of Nations held at Hobart College, at which twenty-six countries were represented by various colleges.

The purpose of the fourteenth Middle Atlantic Model League Assembly was to constitute itself as a Preparatory World Peace Conference, concerning itself with the basic principles underlying a permanent peace and to make the world a better place in which to live after the present World War is over.

The conference was divided into three commissions: Commissions on Political Questions, of which Miss Hogue was a member; Commission on Social and Economic Questions and the Commission on Constitutional Questions. The political and economic commissions considered things to be done for World Peace and the machinery by which the things to be done were considered by the constitutional committee.

Representing Spain, the delegates from Nazareth College, advocated a permanent World Parliament, based on the form of the government of the United States. In the Senate or Upper House, there was equal representation, but the number of representatives from each country in the Lower House was in proportion to the population of each country. These representatives were elected or appointed according to the wishes of each particular country.

Doctor James T. Shotwell, president of the League of Nations Association, acted as master of ceremonies in a series of nation-wide broadcasts given as a preparation for the Model Assembly and Miss Louise Morley of Bryn Mawr College, Assembly president, presided. Miss Casimera Szupello of Elmira, a student in the commercial department at Nazareth College was one of the official correspondents.

Among the social functions to which the college delegates were feted in conjunction with the Model League were a dinner and reception Thursday evening and a formal dance on Friday evening. Students from both Hobart and William-Smith Colleges, Geneva acted as hosts and hostesses.

Noyes Suggests Steps to Avoid Over-Production

East Hamilton—Considerable fluctuation in the producer price of milk during the next few months was forecast last week by Commissioner Holton V. Noyes of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets at a milk seminar conducted here.

"The great increase in milk production", Commissioner Noyes said, comes in the month of May, through the months of June and early July. Just what may be the resultant blend price when the June production reduces the upper blend to around 50 per cent, instead of the present 73 per cent, remains to be seen. Certainly it will be well below the present price, possibly down as low as $1.60, or thereabout.

"Of course, unless there is an increase in the number of cows, production will gradually go down from the middle of July on, until we will again have a percentage of 75 or more in the upper blend and prices will be back to about their present level.

"From the point of view of the 60,000 producers who during this last month of February received a final blend price of $2.10 per hundredweight, an examination reveals that they actually received nearly twice as much per hundredweight for the 73 per cent of their milk which was sold in the upper blend as they did for the 27 per cent which was sold in the lower blend. I think it is open to considerable question whether they would not have been better off if they had not produced the extra 27 per cent at all.

"Unfortunately, under the order there is no incentive for any individual producer to control his production. Nevertheless, if some way could be devised to fit production to somewhere near the actual needs of the market, plus a reasonable surplus, the 60,000 producers would profit both in immediate results and in continued ability to maintain their dominance of the situation. It may be that if producers in general understand the operation of the order completely they will quite generally see the folly of increased production under present conditions.

"One very practical way of avoiding increased production would be for each farmer to go through his herd and get rid of the poorer producers. It is more than probable that in most herds there are cows that are unprofitable under any conditions. It is even conceivable that all of the surplus, which might be very troublesome, would be from the cows that would not be profitable no matter what the price."

Many Advantages in Soaking the Weekly Wash

There are so many advantages to a sudsy soaking of clothes that most women have found it an important step in the washing process. Soaking removes much of the loose surface dirt. It opens the meshes of the fabric and permits the suds to penetrate more quickly and thoroughly. Water alone will not permeate the threads nor will it release grease-held dirt. Thus a sudsy soaking reduces the time necessary to operate the machine. And by keeping the wash water from getting disagreeably dirty, it makes possible the washing of more loads with the same suds—thus conserving hot water.

Stains and spots may become set by being put directly into hot water. Therefore only cool or lukewarm water should be used for the soaking. Leading laundry experts agree on these rules:

"Soak cottons and linens in lukewarm suds. Test the water with the back of your wrist. It must not feel hot or cold."

You can use the tub of the washer for soaking; but a separate washtub is more convenient if you have one. Be sure you use enough soap to maintain rich, creamy suds. More soap is required in hard water to make satisfactory suds. With too little suds, dirt is not held in suspension and is redeposited on the clothes.

Health Leaders Report on Work

Health leaders from Home Bureau Units met recently at the court house in Bath to report on work done this year and to discuss possibilities for a health program for next year. The meeting was in charge of Dr. W. M. Smith of the State Department of Health. Dr Smith was transferred to New York on March 1 but returned to Steuben County to complete the program on Pneumonia Control which he planned and started with a series of two institutes held in December in Hornell and Painted Post. Dr. Smith was assisted by Miss Jane Dayton assistant district nupervising nurse from the Hornell district office of the State Department of Health.

Leaders' records show that 32 meetings have been held in different communities in the county with a total attendance of 672. These meetings include talks by local doctors and demonstrations given by the three county health nurses. Unit Leaders expressed their gratitude for the cooperation of the County Medical Society, and the generosity of the local doctors in giving their time to presenting the material in which there was much interest. Also to the nurses, Mrs Margaret Stanaish of Hornell, Mrs. Blodwen Stoddard of Bath, and Mrs. Bertha Walker of Corning, who gave such helpful and interesting demonstrations of bedside care of a pneumonia patient.

In speaking to the group, Dr. Smith suggested that Health Leaders who participated in the project on Pneumonia Control would be interested in following through the comparative reports of the occurrence of pneumonia in 1939 and the figures which will come out at the close of 1940 for that year. Comparative figures for 1938 and '39 would have no bearing on the results of the pneumonia project because the special institutes were not held until early in December 1939 and local unit meetings were not scheduled until after January 1, 1940, in most cases. He also suggested two figures to watch which might point toward direct results of the work done this year would be the comparative number of cases of pneumonia that were typed in 1939 and in 1940 and the pneumonia death rates.

Health authorities are particularly interested in having all cases of pneumonia typed, that is, a specimen of sputum from the patient is sent to one of the county laboratories where it is examined and the laboratory technician is able to tell from which type of pneumonia the patient is suffering. Serums are available for a number of types and the use of serum early in the disease usually causes improvement and shortens the course of the disease by many days.

The other figure to watch for at the close of 1940, the death rate from pneumonia, is the number of deaths per 100 cases. This figure for 1939 was 15.6, a marked drop from the 1938 rate of 27.8.

Leaders attending the meeting discussed a possible health program for the coming year and asked that plans be worked out in cooperation with the State Health Department for an educational program on Control and Prevention and Cancer.

Farm Bureau Reports Large Winter Season

In spite of snow blocked roads, the meetings held by the farm bureau in the past four months were still well patronized and the attendance compares favorably with former years.

Largest of the forty-two meetings which attracted an attendance of some three thousand persons was the 13th Annual Steuben County Potato Growers' Convention held February 23, 24.

Second in attendance was the Dairy Convention which met in the Bath Municipal Hall, January 16, 17. Another major event of the winter season was the 7th Annual Dairy Banquet which filled to capacity the Canisteo Community Hall on March 21.

Discuss Many Subjects

A series of poultry meetings, a popular item of the farm bureau program, presented an illustrated talk on poultry rearing in Hawaii, a disease clinic, marketing forum, and the series was concluded with a banquet at which A. H. Bulkley of Odessa, one of the prominent poultrymen of the northeastern states, was the speaker.

Two dairy cattle feeding schools were held to assist farmers to overcome the problem of the short hay supply. A series of meeting was recently completed at which a representative of the Ayrshire Association discussed breeding programs.

One of the most popular speakers of the entire winter series was Joe Vial of the University of Maryland, a noted breeder and judge of draft horses, who presided at the meeting held only last Saturday afternoon at Thacher Bros., Hornell.

Dairy stable ventilation, the annual meeting of the farm account club are listed, and the executive committees of the dairy herd improvement associations met in annual meetings. In addition to these the farm bureau staff cooperated in meetings held to explain the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program and assisted other farm groups with their sessions.

Paul Thomson State Winner in Stock Judging

Suitable recognition was not made at the recent Farm and Home Week observance of the work of Paul Thomson, of the Addison High School. Mr. Thomson was third highest in the state in the livestock judging contest held during that week.

The Cornell listing did not place Addison High among the first 25 teams. When the discrepancy was called to the attention of the college authorities, they sent a letter of regret but no mention of a prize or other suitable award.

They admitted the error and asked that Mr. Thomson be notified that the authorities "are extremely sorry" that his name was omitted from the list of winners and "that he is officially entitled to third place in the Cornell University Farm and Home Week Livestock Judging contest."

Youths from 225 high schools throughout the state entered the various Farm and Home Week events and competition was keen for top positions. Mr. Thomson admits being nervous in the judging and chose the right stock, but in his reasons went awry through nervousness. However, the honor reflects to the glory of the Addison High School and its agriculture department.

No sums are mentioned in the will.

Under the provisions of this will Mrs. Lena Manley, the widow, receives lifetime use of the house and upon her death the home, recently renovated, reverts to a trust fund set up by the will. The Rev. Billings Dies in Florida

Ed's Note: The Rev. William A. Billings was ordained to the Baptist ministery in Addison and served the Addison church as his first pastorate in 1894 to -898. While here he was beloved by the people of all denominations. He frequently visited here and renewed acquaintances after leaving here. Many of the older residents will remember him.

Rev. William A. Billings

"Rev. William Adelbert Billings, a member of the Memorial Home Community of Penney Farms, Fla., since the fall of 1931, passed out of this life into the life beyond, Sunday, March 31, 1940.

"He suffered a stroke of paralysis Tuesday morning, March 26, which rendered helpless his left side. For some time before he breathed his last he was in a coma. The end came quietly and without pain.

"His wife and their son and daughter survive him.

"Mr. Billings was known throughout the Memorial Home Community for his friendliness and his cheery, kindly and helpful spirit. He will be missed by all.

"He and his wife, Margaret Patterson Billings, began their married life and their life together as evangelist singers of the Gospel in 1890.

"They both had fine voices, sweet and rich in quality, and their success in their evangelistic work was immediate and continuous for about four years. They served in many churches with their pastors, their singing, with its note of sincerity and sympathy, had appealing power, and hundreds of the churches of Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York were won to faith in Jesus Christ and to the Christian life. In 1894 Mr. Billings was ordained to the Gospel minstry. He and Mrs. Billings served in ten churches — all churches of considerable influence in the communities in which they were situated. These churches were in the states of New York, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. Their experience in singing evangelism was exceedingly valuable to them in their pastoral ministry. Their success as evangelistic singers was followed by equal success in the pastorate. Mr. Billings' enthusiastic spirit, his engaging social qualities, his fine personal presence, his ability as a preacher and his power in song contributed greatly to his success as preacher and pastor. He appealed strongly to men and hundreds of men and young people through his influence, were won to the life of loyalty to Jesus Christ. In 1918 he offered himself as ready to serve with the soldiers in France. He was accepted by the Young Men's Christian Association, and went out under that organization. His church in Buffalo granted him a leave of absence for his months, and during that time the church gave his wife half his salary. He did not reach France until the Armistice was signed. He served, however, with the Army there for six months, in the hospital 52 at Le Mans, and later in the Convalescence hospital in the Belgium Camp. His work was so excellent the officers commended him in high terms.

"The young men took to him. He had great influence over them. They thought so much of him and were so drawn to him, and had such affection for him they called him "Daddy". On his return from France, he took up again his work as pastor of the Buffalo Church. He retired in 1929. After his retirement he served as acting pastor for about two years in the Eaton Baptist Church, New York. In August, 1931, he and Mrs. Billings came to the Memorial Home Community and made their home."

Vivian Jacobson Wins County Legion Contest

Vivian Jacobson was awarded first place in the second annual Steuben County American Legion Oratorical Contest held in the Addison High School Friday night. Miss Jacobson, winner in the Addison High School contest, will now represent Steuben County in a seven-county sectional contest to be held in Geneva in May. She was the successful contestant in a group of 11 speakers representing 11 high schools of the county. Tribute to her work and to her mentors was given by the judges.

Second place was awarded to Dean Harris of Hammondsport High and Nelson Ripley of Canisteo was third place winner. In case the winner is unable to compete in Geneva, the second place contestant will do so.

Principal Irving R. Gladstone of the Addison High School was chairman of the program in the absence of Leo Poitras, Bath, who is chairman of the Legion Contest committee and had the responsibility for the preliminary plans for the local and county contests.

He presented Roy Wildman, Hammondsport, State Department vice commander, who made the awards of a silver medal to the winner and bronze medals to the second and third place contestants. All the young people spoke on The Constitution from various angles.

The winner of this contest can compete in the sectionals and the sectional winner will be eligible for the state prize of $100 and the state winner can compete for a $4,000 college scholarship.

There were about 150 attended the contest, inclement weather keeping many from the contest for fear of floods.

Misses Anne Brennan, Helen Aug Geraldine Farrell of Corning spent Friday evening with Miss Louise Phillips of Steuben street.
